“ Cass

She can never be replaced, but she will always be remembered.

We lost the most amazing friend we could have ever asked for. Cass was a light in our lives. We had the kind of friendship we could feel in our souls. If we needed a belly laugh, an infectious smile, straight forward advice, vulgar humor, someone to lean on or hug, she was there.

She was an old hippie at heart, she loved all things pink, tie-dye, retro, or boho. Her style was envious.

She was happiest with her son Kason and loved him to the ends of the earth. “Mom” was her favorite name and she would do anything for him.

Cass took her cancer diagnosis like a champ and decided she wasn't going to let it define her. Watching her fight for her life was the most heart wrenching thing to witness, but she always kept a positive attitude. It was “Just another bump in the road” to her. She never focused on her pain, she always focused on the hope and determination she had to live. She didn't let cancer stop her from living her life. She traveled, rode Harley with Jeff and his buddies, was determined to get as many tattoos as she could in between treatments and made time for girl's weekends regardless of how she was really feeling.

Since we can no longer hold her, we will hold on to the memories, matching friendship bracelets, and matching tattoos. To say that our hearts are shattered would be an understatement.

Cass said “When you find a sister in someone who is not blood, keep her.”

*We will love and cherish you forever Cass,
Love always, Your Soul Sisters (Sara Keil, Katie Bontrager, Tasha Schmitz) ❤️*
